and Inclusive Leadership

About the Course

Background

Gender equality and women's empowerment are both human rights and are necessary for achieving comprehensive, unbiased, and sustainable development.

Women need to actively participate in government and politics in order to maintain democracy. Global statistics clearly show that women are under-represented as leaders, elected officials, and voters due to cultural and social norms, which limit their participation in the political process.

Aims

The aim of the Course is to enhance women's leadership through individual leadership skills development, tools for the promotion of citizens' participation and leadership in the community, as well as strategies related to women's economic empowerment.

The course will provide participants with direct exposure and learning from good practices and approaches in the participants' countries and those developed in Israel, as well as international perspectives provided by UN and international agencies.

Objectives:

- Encouraging and supporting women to acquire the skills and knowledge necessary to enter politics and to advance in public life.
- Recognizing gender biases in local governance and obstacles to the equal participation of women.
- Sharing existing tools for running campaigns, public speaking, and additional communication skills.
- Enhancing confidence and skills needed to deliver training to diverse groups.
- Becoming familiarized with the concept of transformational leadership in politics.
- Alliance building, networking, and building coalitions.
- Sharing models and case studies of support systems for women entrepreneurs.
- Experiencing concrete examples of leadership training and women's empowerment in Israel through study visits.
